SHOWER NEAR CLOSE OF BIG EUCHARISTIC

Drenched Participants Ruined Vestments Worth Fortune

Chicago, June 25.—(AP)—Surging crowds returning from the concluding Eucharistic Congress session at Mundelein overwhelmed police and railroad officials, after a rain and hail storm swept down on the vast assembly yesterday, drenching participants in the ceremonies and onlookers and ruining priestly vestments valued at $200,000.

In the rush for trains a number of persons were hurt or overcome by fatigue, but most of the injuries were slight. More than 100 persons were brought to Chicago by a special hospital train. Thirty-two were taken to north side hospitals, while others with minor hurts were sent to their homes.

Many Women Injured
Among those taken to hospitals were Mother Superior Valeriana, suffering from ptomaine poisoning, and Miss Mae Cunningham, suffering from nervous shock. Both are from Springfield, Illinois.

The most severely injured was Mrs. Sarah Murphy, 60, of Chicago, with a fractured skull and dislocated hip. Two other persons suffered fractured ribs.

More than 1,000 other congress pilgrims were treated during the day at emergency first aid stations on the grounds where the ceremonies were held. Most of the cases were due to fainting or to exhaustion.

Policeman Walked His Beat 72 Hours in His Bare Feet in Chicago

Chicago—"My dogs are burning up and the chief has no sympathy," Policeman Elbert Curran said in explaining walking of his beat barefooted for seventy-two hours during Eucharistic congress.

An army of worshippers, dedicated to the ways of peace, but the equivalent of a war time army of twenty divisions, made and returned from one of the most remarkable pilgrimages in religious history as the closing scene of the congress.

Great Throng Drenched

Pilgrims estimated to number between 500,000 and 1,000,000 poured into Mundelein, a quiet university village forty miles northwest of Chicago, for the procession of the Blessed Sacrament and papal benediction, were drenched by a twenty minute torrent of rain and hail, and then began a stupendous trek back to Chicago that continued for many hours through heavily burdened lines of transportation.

Despite the rain and hail, which descended during the four mile procession of clergy, the ceremonies moved magnificently to their conclusion as Cardinal Bonzano, papal legate, deposited the golden astensorium on the altar of the outdoor sanctuary and turning to the acclamation, uttered the benediction.

The storm, coming after hours of sultry heat, and the sudden movement of great throngs of tired, wet and weary pilgrims toward trains and automobiles at the conclusion of the service, created scenes of confusion and it was some time before the carefully arranged plan of caring for the multitude was functioning again.

AMERICAN WOMEN AGAIN TRIUMPHED IN TENNIS MATCH

Elizabeth Ryan and Mary Brown Continue Way to Doubles Final

Wimbledon, Eng., June 25.—(AP)—Bearing a physician's certificate setting forth that she should not "take part in any vigorous match," Miss Suzanne Lenglen arrived at the tennis courts today to defend her title as singles champion in the Wimbledon golden jubilee tournament.

The European queen of the courts, whose ailment now has been diagnosed as rheumatism, was not favored by promising weather for her match with Mrs. Dewhurst.

Miss Lenglen lacked something of her usual self as she took the court for her twice-postponed singles match with Mrs. Dewhurst. Helen Wills, American champion and rival of the French star, was in the stands.

Miss Lenglen went through the match to victory at 6-2, 6-2, but lacked her former dash.

American Girls Win.
Elizabeth Ryan and Mary K. Brown of California, who yesterday defeated Lenglen and Didi Vlasto in a stirring doubles match, went on to win their second round match against Miss I. Maithy and Mrs. H. G. Broadbridge, 6-1, 2-6, 6-3.

The Duke of York, King George's second son, suffered defeat in the men's doubles. Partnered by L. Creigh, he lost to A. W. Gore and H. Rogers, 6-1, 6-3, 6-2.

Mrs. Marion Z. Jessup of Wilmington, Del., was eliminated in the women's singles by Miss H. Contoslavos. Mrs. Jessup put up a stirring three set battle against her foe, losing 2-6, 6-4, 6-4.

CHARGES DEKALB GIRLS WERE HELD CAPTIVE BY FOUR

Four Belvidere Fellows Held After an All-Night Joy Ride

Sycamore, June 24.—Sheriff Edwin E. Crawford is holding four Belvidere youths in the county jail while county officials are investigating an alleged "joy-ride" in which the quartet is supposed to have participated with two Dekalb girls on Wednesday night.

That sordid details might result from the investigation was hinted by police.

The names of the girls are withheld pending filing of charges. The men gave their names as follows:

Theodore Timoney, 24, Belvidere store owner.

Jacob Rowe, 18.

George Williams, 20.

Kenneth Bennett, 22.

Rowe, Williams and Bennett are said to be grocery clerks at Belvidere.

Timothy is a married man.

Aside from admitting that booze had been found in the machine, a Cadillac, owned by a prominent Belvidere man, and that State's Attorney Cassius Poust and Chief Fred Bull of Dekalb were to join him in quizzing the prisoners, Sheriff Crawford refused to divulge any information as to what course the county authorities were planning to take.

Just how the boys happened to be in possession of the machine is also a mystery to local officials.

All Night Party

According to stories alleged to have been recited by the girls they had accepted a ride in the machine after a street acquaintance. When the boys became abusive, the girls left the machine and secured a ride back to Dekalb on a truck.

The boys are then alleged to have followed the truck, inducing the girls to rejoin them upon assurance that they would be taken home immediately. The "party" that followed is said to have been an all night affair.

It was 7 o'clock Thursday morning when the boys were taken into custody at Dekalb. The girls were not with them at that time, but were said to have been called later at which time they told their stories to the police.

AMERICAN GOLFERS TOOK ALL TROPHIES IN BRITISH OPEN CHAMPIONSHIP AT ST. ANNES

Bobby Jones is First, Watrous Second; Hagen Third

St. Annes, England, June 25.—(AP)—Bobby Jones, America's golfing marvel, today added the British open crown to his long list of trophies by defeating Al Watrous.

He completed the 72 hole grind with an aggregate of 291 strokes. A gallery of 4,000 saw the finish of the gruelling battle in which neither of the two young Americans was able to gain ascendancy until the finish was within sight.

Round after round of applause greeted Bobby, who modestly bowed his brown cap. Then the ubiquitous young British autograph hounds rushed to the ropes and Bobby began signing his name to the cards and books thrust at him.

Al Watrous, Grand Rapids, professional, was second with 293. Walter Hagen tied with George Van Elm for third with 295, in an all-American finish.

The trophy goes to the United States for the fifth time. It was first won by a golfer from America in 1921, when Jack Hutchison won. Walter Hagen was victorious in 1922 and again in 1924, while Long Jim Barnes won last year.

Watrous played the home hole courageously. His drive was bunkered. Then his second soared high and dropped into another sand pit, hole high but left off the green.

Made Difficult Put.
Jones plumped his perfect second a few feet from the hole and it rolled 18 feet beyond, to the top of (Continued on page 2)

Jenkins Also Praised in Concluding Report of Jury

Joliet, Ill., June 25.—(AP)—Commending Governor Len Small for his honest efforts to bring about an improvement in conditions at the Illinois state penitentiary, the Will county grand jury concluded its investigation today and filed a supplementary report with the circuit court before final adjournment.

Today's report expresses gratitude to both Chauncey H. Jenkins and Gov. Small for their cooperation with Will county officials in restoring order and discipline at both the old and new penitentiaries.

In the grand jury's previous report the director of the state Department of Welfare was criticized for his failure to assume direct responsibility for disrupted prison conditions, and for his failure to act.

To Follow Advice.
Recommendations which have not yet been complied with, the grand jury report says, will be complied with by the state officials as soon as practicable.

Governor Small told the grand jury yesterday that Will H. Colvin chairman of the Board of Pardons and Paroles, will no longer hold that office after July 1. Colvin tendered his resignation, according to the Governor, before the first grand jury report was made public and the delay in the Governor's acceptance was caused by his inability to find a suitable successor. Now however, the Governor reports he has found a man to fill the vacancy, and Colvin's resignation has been accepted and a new man will be chairman of the board after the end of this month.

MENDOTAN IN TOILS AFTER WEEK SEARCH

Over Half a Hundred Stolen City Cars Sold There?

Ottawa, Ill., June 25.—(AP)—Implicated in the theft from Chicago of some 25 automobiles, which were sold in Mendota, Henry Gans, owner of a large garage in Mendota, was arrested late yesterday by Sheriff E. J. Welter. He will be taken to Chicago for arraignment.

The arrest of Gans, proprietor of the American garage at Mendota, was the outgrowth of an investigation conducted last week in Mendota and vicinity, in which it was said that 32 cars were under surveillance as having been stolen from Chicago, driven to Mendota and disposed of through the Gans agency. J. P. Cohen of the Automobile Protective Association and Charles R. Gleason of the auto detail, of the Chicago detective bureau spent two days in Mendota a week ago with State Motorcycle Officer Harold Lenox of this city and in that time the officers are said to have found more than fifty cars which are believed to have been stolen.

Extended Into Lee County

The time for the disposal of the Chicago cars is alleged to have extended into Lee county and several machines are now under surveillance in the vicinity of Sublette. The majority of the cars are of the Chevrolet make, and consist chiefly of the coupe type. It was stated that a daily average of five cars of this make and type were stolen from Chicago each day for several days and the members of the auto detail were baffled in their efforts to trace the disposal.

The officers who investigated the case believe that they have discovered one of the largest wholesale auto theft rings in months, and it is expected that several officers will be sent to Mendota and surrounding towns to conduct a search for cars that have been stolen in Chicago, driven to Mendota and then sold.

BOOTLEG LIQUOR PROFITS HINDER LAW ENFORCEMENT

Lawyers Told Masses of People are Restive Under Volsteadism

Moline, Ill., June 25.—(AP)—Bootleg liquor profits are corrupting all branches of law enforcement and are leading to combinations of great strength which promote law violations, declared John R. Montgomery of Chicago, president of the Illinois Bar Association, in his annual address to the association at the fifth annual convention here today.

Mr. Montgomery, in a discussion of the crime situation in America today, declared there is a close link between the illicit liquor trade and most forms of criminal operations.

"Large masses of our people, restive under the 18th amendment and the legislation designed to make it effective, and quite able by reason of the general prosperity to pay high prices for what they drink, have created a wide spread demand for illicit liquor," stated President Montgomery.

"Bootlegging has thus become, when conducted on a large scale, an enormously lucrative occupation. It is inevitable that the gains furnished thereby should be liberally used to corrupt as far as possible all branches of the law enforcement service, and to put into public service as far as possible, those who are subject to corruption."

"It matters little whether we believe, on the one hand, that it is a moral and religious duty to invoke the whole power of the state to restrain every citizen from the use of intoxicating liquors of any sort whatsoever, or whether we believe, on the other hand, that to place a summary law in the constitution is the height of folly and that prohibition laws are such an unwarranted interference with personal liberty that every citizen has a moral right to violate them at will."

"To those who hold either of these opposing views, or a view anywhere between the two extremes, it must be obvious, that highly organized crime exists, and that, if we intend to maintain a free government, we cannot yield to those who organize to bid it open defiance. The sale of illicit liquor is a minor offence compared with the conspiracy to protect the sale of illicit liquor by bribery, intimidation, perjury, subordination of perjury, robbery and murder."

Scott Alienist Draws Fire of Prosecutors

Chicago, June 25.—(AP)—Describing Russell Scott, former Canadian stock salesman, whose life depends on the sale of "paranoid" suffering from dementia praecox, Dr. Harold S. Hulbert, defense alienist, today drew fire from the prosecutors.

If Scott is found sane he will be handed over to the state for execution of death sentence passed on him, for the murder, two years ago, of Joseph Maurer, young drug clerk.

Cross examination of Hulbert by Assistant State's Attorney George E. Gorman drew the admission that Scott's letters to his father, wife and attorney, showed "slight evidence of mental capability." One letter in particular, outlined self-defense plea for his brother Robert, who is held on the same charge on which Russell was convicted.

Hagen tried valiantly, but could do no better than a 76, to tie with George Von Elm, Los Angeles amateur, for third place.

Durkin Case Held Up While Attorneys Argue

Chicago, June 25.—(AP)—Introduction of evidence into the trial of Martin J. Durkin for the killing of a federal agent was checked this morning while attorneys debated the pertinence of testimony relating to Durkin's previous police record. The jury, completed yesterday after four weeks spent in examining nearly 500 witnesses, was sent out while Judge Harry B. Miller listened to legal arguments.

State's Attorneys contended they should be permitted to prove Durkin had previously attacked policemen. Defense counsel declared such testimony was unrelated to the murder of the federal agent, Edwin C. Shanahan.

TO A SCARLET TANGENT—

O Spark, you winged from secret woodland forges

Where starry hammers beat a tune of dreams;

Their smoke hangs fragrant blue mist in the gorges;

Their pulse is throbbing wildly in the streams.

You are a presence from recurrent wonder

That patterns through the urge into the leaf.

On quivering flanks of the retreating thunder

Your notes turn banners, glorious and brief.

Brief like the rapture that this day unfolds

O fitting song that sings long after still.

You show the path—we seek the wild new roses;

You hint of distance—and we climb the hill.

Against the woodland's haze your flaming breast!

You gave the clue and we must find the rest.

Girl Scout Log Full of News

One of the best events in the camp schedule was the cross-country hike, taken this noon, in which we cooked our dinner. This in part consisted of "Angels on Horseback" but evidently some of the angels were not so fond of horseback riding, but the day was saved by the angels delicately flapping down on the buns.

Patrol Two kept taps last night which really proves that miracles do happen.

Because of the absence of the duet by Bill and Pee Wee, we were all entertained by the exquisitely beautiful one of the Kow Kintet. A most enjoyable time was reported by all.

We have a new visitor in camp in the form of Lucia Morris.

Patrol Five experienced a severe fit of hysterics last night when the camp mascot tried to snuggle up in bed with Dorothy Schrock. "Cats!" yelled Dorothy.

A young man from Sheboygan, Wis., with red hair, a rather pasty complexion, green eyes, pink ears, freckled nose, and a striking blue necktie was anxiously inquiring at the "Y" for a means of coming out to camp.

Anyone owning him will please come forward.

Gwen Harper proved to be the heroine of the camp today when she shinned the flag pole to rescue the flag.

Miss Swartz: What naturally arouses in your mind after repeating the Scout Promise?

Jarlett Jones: Amen!

Josephine Kennedy: What is a shingle hob?

Kathleen Cotter: A chip off the back of the old block.

Ruth Leydig to Elsie Neff: Say Elsie, you know the red Indian in front of Stratton-Covert's?

Elsie: Yes?

Ruth: Well, he doesn't know you.

Bill: Look out, sap! Don't strike a match to the gas tank.

Pee Wee: It's all right, it's a safety match.

Elsie Neff by Dwight's letters;

The WOMAN'S DAY

by Allene Sumner

Mother Love!

THE picturesque mother of Jesse James is all too little known for a world which has the knack of digging fourth from obscurity these mothers who might prefer the shadows. It seems that Mrs. James had a stumpy arm because a bomb thrown into her domain and meant for her high-spirited son, had hit her instead. Mama capitalized the misfortune. She sat on the porch of her rambling farm home in Missouri, accoutered in white apron waiting for trade. A sign on the fence read, "Jesse James farm. Admission 25 cents." And for this sum the little old woman showed her arm, told what Jesse ate as a babe, posed for her picture and wept a salty tear over her bandit son's grave.

Why They Do!

"If you ask a native why he goes and gets married," writes Hans Couenhove in "My African Neighbors," "he never replies, 'because I love the girl,' but invariably by the question, 'who is to prepare my food?'"

Maybe She Cooks This!

AND the husky spouse will have a much surer chance of keeping her lice lord if when the siren blows its heated blasts, she makes a cool-some potion such as peanut brittle. Said spouse must have one qt. whipped cream, 1 1/2 cups sugar, 1/2 box gelatine, 1 cup peanut brittle put through coarse knife of chopper, pinch of salt, 3 tablespoons hot water, 2 tablespoons cold water, 1 teaspoon vanilla extract. Fold sugar into whipped cream, then gelatine that has been soaked in cold water and dissolved in hot water, cool thoroughly. Fold in nuts, salt and flavoring, pack in salt and ice four hours.

All in the Week's Work!

SENATOR WILLIAM BORAH is rumored as a presidential candidate for the dray. He claims the "light wine and beer" faction. Rumor has it that Mrs. Woodrow Wilson who has steadfastly refused permission to one and sundry to print the late president's letters is about to launch her own publication of her husband's letters in silent rebuke of Colonel House's reminiscences. Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, president of the National Woman's Party, launched a diatribe against Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, honorary president of the National League of Women Voters. Mrs. Belmont blames Mrs. Catt for the exclusion of her party from the International Woman Suffrage Alliance meeting in Paris.

Summer Tresses

THE oily-haired maiden will like this new hair recipe lifted from the beauty recipe books of Helen of Troy if not, it should have been Helen if not, she should have had her Nubian slave girl beat two egg whites stiffly

Flapper Trick!

FLAPPER MAGDALEN KING HALL aged 19, daughter of Sir George King-Hall, admiral in the British Royal Navy, is laughing up her crepe sleeves at the world these days. Miss Magdalen revealed to a deluded universe that she is the Miss Cleone Knox of the Old Country Down whose piquant diary of this supposed maid of 1776 was supposed to have been found and edited by a kinsman of hers. Must be nice to have a girl like Magdalen—she must have made a good many luscious pounds sterling by that hoax.

Summer Furs

FUR collars on sport travel coats are not so good as a real collar this year says Dame Fashion, but narrow bandings running around the collar or even the full length of the coat in a collarwise, and in beige shades, are very chic. The fox fur is the favored separate scarf.

Young People Were Married Wednesday

A pretty mid-June wedding was solemnized at 6 o'clock Wednesday morning at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Hunter on Third avenue, Sterling, when their daughter, Miss Helen Gertrude, became the bride of Gabriel G. Landis of Nachusa. Dr. E. C. Harris, pastor of St. John's Lutheran church, performed the ceremony using the single ring service, which united the lives of the young couple.

Twenty-five relatives and friends of the young couple witnessed the ceremony. The home was beautifully decorated in pink and white, chosen by the bride and bouquets of roses and peonies.

The ceremony took place in the living room under a beautiful arch of pink and white crepe paper streamers and a large white wedding bell. There were also decorations of pink and white peonies and ferns which produced a bower of beauty. The bride was attended by Miss Emma Royson of Sterling and Miss Dugard of Dixon. Mrs. R. E. Hook of Sterling played the wedding march by Mendelssohn as the bridegroom entered the room. Leading the procession was the little ring bearer, Luella Bradley of Morrison, who carried the wedding ring nestled in the heart of a white rose.

Gown of Georgette Crepe.

The bride wore a charming gown of white georgette crepe over white crepe and carried a bouquet of pink and white roses. A special accessory of the bride's costume were the slippers, worn by her mother when she was a bride. The bridesmaid was prettily attired in a frock of tan silk and the little ring bearer wore a dainty dress of pink crepe.

Immediately after the ceremony congratulations were extended to the happy couple. A three course wedding breakfast was served. Covers were laid at two large tables for twenty-five. The bride's table was adorned with a handsome wedding cake and crystal baskets of pink and white cut flowers. The dining room was decorated in pink and white streamers. The color scheme on the tables was carried out in pink and white, with which the dainty nut cups and place cards harmonized.

The wedding breakfast was prepared by Mrs. Lauren E. Miller, Mrs. John Johnson, Mrs. Richard Radke

Countess of Cathcart and Fiance

Ashes of the notorious "turpitude" imagination case are to be buried under a new name. Vera, Countess of Cathcart, is reported engaged to Gideon Bolsevalin in London. The Countess was denied admission to the United States when she admitted to immigration officials that she had eloped to South Africa with the Earl of Craven "without benefit of clergy." Here she is with Bolsevalin.

and Mrs. Fred Harms. The girls who served were two chums of the bride, Misses Florence Harms and Minnie Hayen.

The bride is a charming girl and graduated from the Sterling Township high school in 1925. She is a young lady of winsome personality who has a host of friends. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ezra Landis of Nachusa. He is a young man highly esteemed in the community where he resides, and is a valued employee in the Dixon Shoe factory.

The young couple received many handsome and costly wedding gifts from their relatives and friends.

Amid a shower of rice, the couple departed for their honeymoon trip, their destination being unknown to their friends. Their many friends extend congratulations and best wishes for many happy years of married life.

The Ladies of the G. A. R., Dixon Circle No. 73, held their regular meeting in G. A. R. Hall Monday evening with a good attendance of officers and members present.

The usual order of business was transacted. Mrs. Elsa Hawkins, the first delegate to the convention held in Springfield in May, read a very interesting report.

It was decided at this meeting to hold one meeting a month during the summer months. The meeting is to be held on the second meeting date in the month.

TOO BAD FOR HELEN.

Just as her chance, for which she had waited a year, was at hand, Helen Wills, American woman's tennis champion, was stricken with appendicitis, and so she must pass up her greatly advertised match with Suzanna Lenglen, woman's champion of the world.

The young California girl was beaten last year by Suzanne, not, however, before extending the Frenchwoman to her best and exhibiting a pretty fine courage in the face of the odds against her.

This year, fortified with another year's experience, Helen felt confident of taking the measure of the marvelous Suzanne. But she has just undergone an operation in Paris, and it would be inadvisable, even in a girl of her marvelous physique, to attempt strenuous play for several months.

It is too bad—both from the French viewpoint and the American. The French are good enough sports, and confident enough in the ability of Lenglen, to welcome any and all America did want to see "Little Poker Face" realize her ambition.

But another year is coming—and another year's time should favor Helen more than Suzanne. The American is young, and her game is getting better, whereas the French girl, already well past the flapper age, has reached her peak.

GLAD TIDINGS, GENTS!

Good news for husbands who strip gears with all the celerity of younger blades who Charleston!

"Back seat driving" on the part of a wife is true and just cause for divorce. Precedent is established by the Supreme Court of California in the case of Harman versus Harman.

Claud Harman, doughty locomotive engineer of San Francisco, stated that his wife Jessie did constantly opine from her back seat roost just how and when and why he should negotiate curves, the passing of other vehicles, and that she screamed when there was no due cause for said screaming.

The lower court laughed and disposed of irate husband Harman's plea, but the state supreme court gave him his divorce with a judicial verve and flair, to say nothing of fillip, which seemed to commend Harman highly as a benefactor to the race with his precedent.

THE JOHN ERICSSON LEAGUE.

Organization of a national John Ericsson Republican league when many persons of eligibility were assembled in Washington has been a signal for a spasm by the democratic national committee.

The east is not to be blamed for what it doesn't know, perhaps, but formation of this league has been treated as a movement of the moment for immediate political purposes and capitalization of the visit of the Swedish crown prince. If the east will come out west, it will discover that the John Ericsson Republican league is a healthy organization, no longer in its infancy.

That the occasion of unveiling of the John Ericsson statue in Washington should be taken as opportune for extending the body into a national organization was not at all out of line with propriety. The event brought together the men who naturally would take a leading part in the organization.

Smith W. Brookhart has been before the people of Iowa as a candidate for United States senator in the primary and general elections six times in six years. When the official canvass of Monday's election has been made he will have received five certificates of nomination or election out of six. Why attach such great political importance to the sixth, when there have been five others?

ADVENTURES OF THE TWINS

by Olive Roberts Barton

NO. 23—THE LAST MOONBEAM AT 8:15

There sat Flops on the steps. And there stood Inco, the runaway china elephant.

I don't know exactly how the Man in the Moon managed to get the Twins to the Sandman's house in Shut-Eye Town, but he did it somehow.

It runs in my mind, but I'm not sure, that he telephoned with his magic telescope to the Dream-Maker man and his three sons, Oh, my yes, they all had reached home safely, and Shore had his airplane fixed as fine as new, and everything was lovely. Well, as I said before, it runs in my mind that the Man in the Moon telephoned through his telescope to them, and one of them managed to take the Twins back to Shut-Eye Town.

Yes, I'm sure of it now. It was Snore, and he said that as he had an order to stop at the Sand Hill and take a load of sleepy sand to the Sandman's house anyway, he'd take the Twins right along.

And that's the way the Twins got there.

There sat Flops on the steps. And there stood Inco, the runaway china elephant, leaning against the Sandman's front door, exactly as he had done in the children's room at home. Inco still looked down at the floor with his china eyes.

"Hello, there!" cried the Twins. "My, but we're glad we found you."

Flops jumped up and waved his cap. "Hello," he shouted. "I'm glad you came, aren't you, Inco?"

"No," said Inco. "Not very."

"Oh, Inco!" said Nancy frowning on her knees beside him. "I never knew you had any feelings. Honest I didn't. Neither did Nick. We just thought you were a—"

"I know," said Inco. "Just a door stop. And you hugged all your toys and played with them, but you only shoved me with your foot when I was in the Moon's way. And everybody laughed at me because I had pink roses pointed on me. Nobody laughs at me here. The Sandman told me to come one night when he was in your room dropping sand into your eyes. I like it here on the moon. I don't want to go back to the earth. Unless—"

"Unless what?" said Nancy. "We want you to be happy."

"Unless I can be a really elephant in a circus," said Inco.

"And I don't want to go back to the earth, either," said Flops, "unless I can be a really clown in a circus. I'd rather stay up here at the Sandman's house in Shut-Eye Town in Drowsy Land on the moon."

"That's just what we've come for," said Nick. "We're going to take you with us to a circus the Man-in-the-Moon told us about. And if you like it, we are going to ask the Fairy Queen to—"

"Oh, would you?" cried Flops.

"Do you mean it?" asked Inco, waving his china trunk in his excitement.

"Of course, we mean it," said Nancy. "I'll ring the door bell and tell the Sandman right now that we are taking you with us, so he won't be worried."

So the Twins rang the doorbell and the Sandman came out with a big bag on his back.

"No, I won't mind if you take Inco and Flops," he said. "But you'll have to hurry. I heard Mister Bluster Gust, the weatherman, say that there was to be a storm at eight-fifteen. The last moonbeam goes down to the earth then. That's the one I'm going on. You'd better come with me."

Her Own Way

A STORY OF A GIRL OF TODAY

DANCING FOR MONEY

"The girl was very shabby who talked to me in the park, Judy. In fact I could not always understand her. For instance, when I told her that I wished I didn't know where I was going to get the money to eat that night, she said: 'Come off. Come on. You're telling the cockeyed world something that you can't prove.'"

"I didn't know what she meant by 'cock-eyed' world, but I gallantly told her I was telling the truth, and she answered:

"'So's your old man.'"

"Finally, she said: 'I must leave you, for I'm on at The Circle from half past six until ten tonight, and I've got to go and feed my stomach first. I don't dare to trust those hard-shelled old guys but I have to dance with them. They pay me out of my supper.'"

"Where is The Circle?" I asked.

"'Good Lord, girlie, don't you know where The Circle is?'"

"I don't even know what it is," I answered.

"Say, girlie, your education has been sadly neglected. Come on with me and I'll show you the place where they have the best jabs and the best Charleston dancer in town."

"I had been trying to learn the Charleston, Judy, and I was rather taken with this until I realized that I would have to have a partner."

"I don't know anyone to dance with."

"You don't have to know anyone. There are always plenty of gigois about."

"I must have looked my mystification, for she said: 'Gosh, you don't know much, do ya. A "gigolo" is a young man who dances with women who come to The Circle with no men to dance with them.'"

"They are like I am, dearie. That's their business, and the boss pays them fifty cents an hour. But you needn't think the women who hire them get away with that, for I'm sure those clever boys pick up a lot of money from their partners just as I do with the guys I dance with."

"Almost unconsciously I drew back a little, and yet, I must confess, the idea had a great fascination for me. I wondered if it were true that under any circumstance, that I, Joan Meredith, would dance with any man who had to be paid for it."

"I laughed. It truly was a laughable idea. Could such a thing be possible? Were there such places?"

RAIN

Why do ya kick when it rains a bit, and why does it make ya throw a fit? Just wait a while, till the clouds have gone, and then take a look at the old front lawn.

Think o' the trouble it saves ya, man. Helps ya to sidetrack the sprinkling can. Think o' the growth that the garden's gained. How 'bout the muscles that are not strained?

Maybe ya planted some seeds last week—waitin' and hopin' to see them peek. Fate serves this dish in its garden cup; the rain comes down an' the seeds come up.

Nature, ya know, has ta have a drink. Maybe a man doesn't stop ta think. Cht out the frettin'—cause what do ya gain? The most you can do is—just let it rain.

TWILIGHT LEAGUE INAUGURATED BY CASE AND BROWN SHOE CO. TEAMS; PLOW MAKERS WON EASILY, 8 TO 1

Sanmier, the Shoe Makers' Port Sider, Could Not Find Plate

The newly organized Twilight Baseball League opened its schedule last evening at Brown Field with the J. I. Case Company's team of veterans, taking the measure of the Brown Shoe Makers by a score of 8 to 1. Sanmier, a port-sider, started the mound work for the shoe makers and was without control in the opening frame when nine men faced him. Larkins and F. Vaughan drew walks as Sanmier struggled to locate the plate and Milt Vaughan caught a curve on the end of the bat and put it out of the lot for a homer, "Buck" Lightner, hero of many a local ball game, cracked a double to deep left and scored when Schofield sent a single into right. Kraner fanned and Daniel ripped a double to left, scoring Lightner. Rice and Whitford were retired at first base and the plow makers had piled up a total of five runs off four hits in the opening frame.

Portsider Jerked.
The southpaw was retired at the close of the first inning and Hensler was sent to the box and finished the contest. He had but one bad inning, the second when three runs crossed the rubber. Larkins drew a walk and went to third when F. Vaughan sent out a Texas leaguer to right field. Milt Vaughan was hit by a pitched ball and the bases were loaded. Lightner took the count on three strikes, and Schofield lifted one into left field which was fumbled, Larkins scoring. Kraner was safe when Wedlake made a bad peg and Milt Vaughan scored. This completed the scoring for the evening as far as the plow makers were concerned.

Saved From Shutout.
In the fourth inning Wedlake singled to deep left and went to second on Rice's error and third on Schofield's bad judgment. Six fanned and Matthews hit a slow grounder to first, allowing Wedlake to score and save his team from the humiliation of being shut out.

Next Tuesday evening at 6 o'clock the Reynolds Wire Company and the L. N. U. company teams will meet. The score:

Yale and Harvard in Annual Regatta Today

New London, Conn., June 25—(AP)—Yale and Harvard, America's most ancient college rivals, today write the final chapter of their annual athletic competition in the picturesque setting of the Thames River, scene of their fifty-ninth regatta.

Yale was a slight favorite for the four mile varsity race at six p. m. standard time, the last of three events of the day, but Harvard hopes were high for its first victory in six years. The rest of the program comprised freshmen and junior varsity two mile races in the morning.

The Thames racing lane was flat as a pancake today when the freshman eight left their quarters for their two mile contest. Conditions were fine for rowing.

JULY FINDS YANKS WAY OUT AHEAD IN AMERICAN LEAGUE

While Pirates and Reds are Staging Hectic Scrap in National

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
As July, the month that often decides baseball champions, approaches, the New York Yankees are far in the van in the American League, while Pittsburgh and Cincinnati are fighting for honors in the National. Usually the teams trading on July 1 have captured the pennants. One notable exception was the great Boston Braves' drive of 1914, which took them from last place at the opening of July to a world champion in October.

Washington in the American and New York in the National, favorites before the season started, are down in the second division, but yesterday started drives which may mean reining.

Giants Took Couple.
The Giants captured a double header by slugging the offerings of Philadelphia pitchers to every corner of the Polo Grounds. They piled up 17 safe hits to win the first encounter, 12-7, and registered 12 blows to take the second, 7-2. Knight, mound man for the Phillies, made two homers, but his pitching failed to match his batting.

Pittsburgh was in haste to catch a train out of St. Louis and the Cardinals hammered over three runs to tie the count in the eighth. The game ended with the ninth, 3-3, by agreement.

Senators Also Win.
Washington got a double victory over Philadelphia, 8-6 and 3-1, the second game being called in the sixth on account of rain. The Senators registered a triple play in the second game.

The Yankees, with only six hits, carried Boston to eleven innings before admitting defeat, 6 to 5. Phil Todd produced a single at the last minute to score the winning run. Lazzeri of the Yanks garnered a home run, triple and single for half of his team's hits.

Chicago gained a game on the Yankees and at the same time secured its hold on second place by beating Cleveland, 9-6. Falk's belt into the stands accounted for three of the tallies.

MANDELL TO MIX WITH KANSAS IN MOOSE BENEFIT

Many Dixon Boxing Fans Will Attend Bout in Chicago July 3

Chicago—Sammy Mandell is busy training for his bout here with Rocky Kansas, scheduled for the White Sox ball park here, July 3rd. Sammy is in wonderful shape, having been working in the out of doors for several months. He will need nothing but a little boxing to put him on edge for his chance at the lightweight title. The fight is to go ten rounds at 135 pounds and to a referee's decision.

Mandell boxed yesterday with Ernie Peters, Chicago's flyweight sensation and with Don Davis, fighting "Gob." He went three fast rounds with each boy and looked as fast as he ever did. He even made the speedy Peters step fast to keep up with him.

Kansas will arrive here Monday, in accordance with the rules of the Illinois Athletic Commission and will train at Mullen's Gymnasium. The champion is reported to be in good condition, training at his home in Buffalo and will need very little strenuous work during the week preceding the fight.

Promoter Jim Mullen who is staging the bout for the Loyal Order of Moose during the national Moose Convention, has been busy with the details of the big match and has just completed the card of supporting bouts and submitted them to the Commission for approval. There will be two ten round bouts, in addition to the main event and one six as well as a four round curtain raiser.

Seats for the ringside section are being constructed and will be far better than the average seat. Each ringside seat will have a back to it and will be plainly marked. A special ring is being constructed with an all metal frame. Every detail in connection with the show has been completed and from present indications there will not be a single hitch to the proceedings.

Seats went on sale last Wednesday and the demand for reservations has been heavy. Out of town patrons will secure good service on reservation requests by sending a certified check or money order to the Illinois Memorial Gymnasium Association, 180 West Randolph Street, Chicago.

Bleachers and grandstand seats are priced at $2.20 and $3.30 and are not reserved. Box seats are $5.50 and $8.25 and are reserved. Ringside seats are $11.00. These prices include the war tax.

Mandell will not box today but has been ordered to take a day off and play golf. Eddie Kane, his manager figures Sammy is right on edge and plans on keeping him that way, taking no chances of him going stale.

Completion of rounds before the semi-finals in all events except men's singles today occupied a half hundred players at Indianapolis for the western clay court tennis championship tournament. The committee in charge of the championships announced postponement of the semi-finals of the men's singles until Saturday.

Newsboy Brown of New York, and Teddy Silva, Oakland, contenders for the flyweight crown, are in top form for their 10 round bout at Hollywood, Calif., tonight. Brown, because of a draw with Fidel LaBarbara flyweight champion, was a favorite with fans today. Each will enter the ring at 114 pounds.

The twenty-sixth annual trans-Mississippi golf tournament at St. Louis, Mo., reached a crucial stage today when two strapping Omaha youths matched strokes in the semi-final round with a pair of crack middle-western veterans. Jack Pellard, 17 year old Omaha high school boy, teed off with the veteran Eddie Heid, Algonquin, St. Louis, while John Goodman, 18 year old Omaha city champion, carried his fight for championship honors, through the semi-final round with a dark horse player, J. W. Dawson, Glen Oak, Chicago. The final round of 36 holes will be played tomorrow.

Friends of Suzanne Lenglen say that her physician has diagnosed the ailment from which she has been suffering several days as rheumatism. It is asserted that she had a fainting spell after the double match at Wimbledon yesterday in which she and Mlle Didi Clasto were handily defeated by the American players, Miss Mary Browne and Miss Elizabeth Ryan, and that after she left Wimbledon she consulted a London throat spec-alist and later was compelled to take to bed.

Two high school pitchers who have major league bids were the principal figures today at Chicago in the seventh annual inter city championship game between scholastic baseball teams of New York City and Chicago. Frank Nekola was assigned the game for his finale as a scholastic filer by Coach Siegel of Evander Childs high of New York and Alf Thorp, also concluding his high school career, was ordered to the mound for Lane Tech, Chicago defender of the 1925 inter-city title.

Plans to make Chicago the annual battle ground for deciding East-west football supremacy have been given impetus by hearty concurrence on the part of Coach Enoch Bagshaw of the University of Washington. Bagshaw thinks Chicago's central location makes it ideal for the games, and favors the Saturday after Thanksgiving for the contests.

Walker, With Nothing But Game Heart, Beaten

New York, June 25—(AP)—With nothing left but a game fighting heart Mickey Walker, once great welterweight crown bearer, went down in defeat last night before Joe Dundee of Baltimore. Scheduled for ten rounds, the one-sided fight went eight with the one-time champion beaten throughout. After two minutes and fifty three seconds of milling in the eighth, the referee humanely stepped in and stopped the affair. Although the twelve thousand spectators yelled to have the one sided bout stopped, Walker protested to Referee Eddie Forbes in an effort to have the fight continued to the end.

CAMP YOMECHAS RAZED; OUTING WAS FINE EVENT

Girl Scouts Closed in Fine Style; Camp Equipment Moved

The camping season for the Y. M. C. A. and Girl Scouts is over for another year and today men are on the job taking down tents and trucks are busy bringing the stuff back to town. The scene of Lake Yomechas all day was very much like a circus that is changing lots and by tomorrow these two successful camps will be things of happy memories only.

One thing that has added greatly to the camp at Lake Yomechas has been the permanent equipment. Camping has become an outstanding part of boys and girls work of the country and Y. M. C. A.'s everywhere are getting permanent equipment. In Illinois there are 26 Y. M. C. A. camps this year. Waukegan has a new permanent camp site. Extensive improvements at Camp Hastings, and number of other Chicago camps are being made. Camp Shabena of the Galesburg Y. M. C. A. has erected bunk houses. A new mess house and lodge have been put up at Camp Douglas of the Oak Park Association.

As Colonel Brinton, who was a visitor at the Girl's camp a few nights ago said, "This whole camp movement goes far in the building of character in the lives of boys and girls of today, or the future citizens of tomorrow."

SUMMER NIGHT BAND CONCERTS BEING PLANNED

Chamber of Commerce Working on Plan of Financing

The Boys' Band, which has been meeting Wednesday evenings at 7:30, is changing its date for practice to Monday evening at 7:30. This being Ladies' Day at the "Y", the boys will use the side entrance.

Next week there will be two practices, one on Monday and one on Thursday, at the same hour, in preparation for the Amboy celebration, for which the boys will play.

Requests are constantly coming in at the "Y" office, asking when the Boys' Band concerts will be started in Dixon. The Chamber of Commerce is working on this matter and it hoped that sufficient money will be raised by the end of next week to assure concerts for the balance of the summer. The boys have been practicing faithfully and have been looking forward for several months to the giving of these concerts.

Hull, England—There's a boycott against a handsome young royal bachelor, but his escape from Cupid is not the reason. The fourteen town councillors have given notice that they will not attend the ceremonies connected with the coming visit of Prince of Wales, because some general strikers have not been reinstated.

Boston—There's danger in "love me, love my dog." Miss Hazel Rosinger has a verdict for $2,250 against her quondam friend, Isador Warsauer. She testified she kissed his dog and was bitten. Her story was that a bite in the cheek came right after she turned on some canned music.

London—Apparently most members of the House of Lords agree with Lord Hanbury, who pleaded: "For heaven's sake, let the males have one place in the country where they can live in peace." A bill to permit peeresses to sit and vote was defeated. Lord Newton argued that if it were desired to get young bloods to attend the debates chorus ladies would be more effective than the bill.

London—Bad language of modern mothers participating in this so-called greater freedom is responsible for much loose speech among school girls, in the opinion of Miss Mary Morrison, principal of a school for girls.

LITTLE BIG HORN BATTLE FOUGHT AGAIN IN WEST

Custer's Last Stand is Re-Enacted Today in Anniversary Fete

Crow Agency, Mont., June 25—(AP) The battle of Little Big Horn is being fought again today in an atmosphere closely resembling frontier life of half a century ago, when General George A. Custer and his immediate command were annihilated by Sioux and Cheyenne Indians.

Thousands of visitors, attracted by the spectacle, from all parts of the northwest took stations on the hills overlooking the valley of the Little Big Horn. They were able to look across the low knolls up what is now called Reno Creek, down the course of which the regiment moved toward the valley where the Sioux and Cheyennes were gathered fifty years ago in what is said to be the biggest Indian village of its time.

Before this village was sighted, Custer divided his command into three detachments, taking one with him and placing the others under command of Reno and Benteen, with others to go ahead while he circled around the ridges to reach the village.

Reno moved down the flat to attack the lower end of the camp and the scene of his last stand is readily discernible now.

The program proper will conclude Sunday with a memorial service to General Custer.

Nationally Known Baseball Trainer Says It Does Not Matter

LINIMENT HE USES ON BIG LEAGUE
BALL PLAYERS STOPS PAIN QUICK

Tells How to Stop Pains,
Aches, Lame Back
Quickly.

READ WHAT THIS EXPERT SAYS BELOW

"For twenty-five years I have studied how to keep men in perfect physical condition and my experience makes me certain I can take a person no matter how much they ache and hurt from rheumatism, lame back, neuritis, lumbago or neuralgia and quickly have them feeling like running a foot race or a home run.

"Ball players, after getting up a sweat, often play an inning or two in the rain, and then damp, cold and chilled to the bone, catch trains, with result that next day they show up at the ball park so crippled with rheumatism, lameness and stiff joints they can hardly walk. An ordinary liniment would never fix them up quickly, but the liniment we use does the trick," declares Mike Martin, general trainer of the Washington Baseball Club.

Fans Know Mike. So many people with rheumatism, lame back, neuralgia and neuritis have wanted this liniment which we use at the ball park that bottles are mailed all over the country and now it can be obtained in drug stores in small bottles for a few cents. Just ask for Mike Martin's Liniment. It is guaranteed to be the finest, speediest liniment made and will bring complete relief to user or money refunded. Folder enclosed with each bottle tells how to use this liniment. If people put of town cannot get Mike

Good Thoughts for Good People

Bring ye all the tithes into the storehouse, that there may be meat in mine house, and prove me now herewith, saith the Lord of hosts, if I will not open you the windows of heaven, and pour you out a blessing, that there shall not be room enough to receive it.

Malachi.

My soul, O'erfraught with gratitude, rejects the aid of language. Lord, behold my heart.

Hannah More.

As we have grown and prospered in material things, so also should we progress in moral and spiritual things. We are a God-fearing people, who should set ourselves against evil and strive for righteousness in living, and observing the Golden Rule, we should from our abundance help and serve those less fortunately placed.

Calvin Coolidge.

Gratitude is the fruit of great cultivation; you do not find it among gross people.

Dr. Johnson.

Lift up your eyes, and look on the fields; for they are white already to harvest.

Christ Jesus.

There is cause for rejoicing when the spirit of thanksgiving is in evidence anywhere. For what does it imply? The recognition of good. Gratitude is sure to be present where good is being recognized. But gratitude is never to be found in the thought which is selfish, in the thought which is hateful, revengeful, jealous, envious, unjust.

FIRST METHODIST CHURCH

Albert W. Carlson, Pastor

We express our deep appreciation to the choir and soloists who rendered the sacred concert last Sunday evening. It was a real success and by musical achievements considered a remarkable achievement under the able leadership of Professor Johnston. The fine shading, close harmony, and great climaxes were all done with fine artistic touch. The soloists of the evening sang with great confidence and portrayed the deep sentiment of life, interpreted in song. The large audience present indicated the interest in these concerts and in the past Sunday evening programs.

BROKEN HEARTS of HOLLYWOOD

Copyrighted by Warner Bros. Pictures, Inc.
"BROKEN HEARTS OF HOLLYWOOD" by Louise Dresser is a Warner pictureization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS
Betsy Terwilliger and Hal Chutney, movie aspirants in Hollywood, are dismal failures in their attempts at screen acting. Marshall, reputed to be responsible for many of the "broken hearts of Hollywood," is attentive to Betsy, arousing Hal's jealous anger. As extras they meet disheartening experiences. Hal is seriously hurt in an accident—Betsy vainly fights to support both. In desperation, she offers a proposal to McLain, noted screen villain, but he befriends her and Hal, giving her a part in his picture. Virginia Perry, a failure, is discussed for a part.

"But Virginia Perry's the biggest cause in Hollywood, she started out down. Cut out the jokes Walter." The director made no bones about displaying his impatience. "Why, that old wreck drank her self to death weeks ago, I heard—"

"Well, she's been miraculously resurrected then, for I saw her outside. She turned her face away, so that I wouldn't speak to her; Virginia was always touchy and proud. Let's consider her."

"And let our overhead pile up while we're waiting for her to sober out of a ginsoak four times a week! Say, if you've got any more suggestions like that, Walter, you'd better get Rockefeller to back you."

"But now just supposing we could get Virginia to stay on the straight and narrow, do either of you birds know anyone better fitted for the part?"

"None-o-o," in unison.

Betsy, who had been listening with high beating heart at the prospect of some good fortune for the poor fallen woman—the woman so degraded that she was not considered fit to be allowed into Hollywood studios—spoke up eagerly.

The men looked at Betsy in amazement.

"Oh, please—do give her a chance." The men looked at Betsy in amazement; but despite their evident resentment of the effrontery of her, a green newcomer just in by the skin of her teeth herself, pleading for another, she said earnestly: "I will help her to do—the right thing. Perhaps a woman's influence will do more than you men have ever been able to—"

"There's truth in what the kid says," declared the producer. "Mrs. Perry's been battered from pillar to post and abused and kicked by every loud-mouthed assistant in the business. By jimmie, it might be an inspiration—we'll call her in."

Thus, in the fateful caprices of that most irrational business, Virginia Perry, the derelict, found herself ushered in, interviewed, coarsely lectured, warned—and hired! All in half the time it would have taken the employment manager of a more practical business to call a patrol wagon and have her dragged away to a drunkard's cell.

After half an hour that had her head whirling like a boy's top, Betsy found herself clasping hands with the dissipated creature whose eyes were lighted more by an interest in the girl before her than in the job she had just gotten. Jobs meant nothing more to Virginia Perry than a slightly longer lease on a life that did not matter anyhow. But this sweet, unspoiled girl! Perhaps it was a vision of such fairness and charm as once was hers that lighted Virginia's lack-lustre eyes with a bewildered fascination.

"I remember you, dear—weren't you the little girl who kept the bathrobe on in Walter's last Amalgamated picture?"

Betsy nodded. The two women were alone and aside, while the men talked at the desk.

"What did you say your name was?"

The words slithered in Virginia's whiskey reared throat like roosebuds down a coal chute.

"Betsy Ann Terwilliger!"

"What—what did you say?" Virginia's voice rose to a shrill cry that frightened Betsy and drew the started attention of the three men. "Terwilliger?"

Virginia gasped, "My God!" Then she saw that her manner had excited astonishment, and she began to cover up, laughing in an uncertain, fuddled way. "Nerves—nerves, a little raw! Don't mind me."

The men went back to their interrupted conference. Virginia clutched Betsy and started to ask questions. But her intensity alarmed the girl, and it took Virginia many long minutes of self-expression to reassure Betsy, before she was able to pump out of the girl all the details that she wanted.

Yes, good God!—It was true! Every fact Betsy innocently unfolded dovetailed and checked, except the truth, which even she did not know. Only Virginia in all the world knew that! Her husband had sworn to take the family name of his mother—Terwilliger—when he had taken the child and gone east to make a new start after the sordid mess of their divorce spread in the papers had his own name and his old environment unbearable.

With her heart melting within her hot bosom like snow under a July sun, Virginia fought with herself. She, fallen woman, by word of audacious for all that was drunken and sordid in the lowest depths to which a woman can descend, was the mother of this fair, dear child who stood now at the threshold of a career. All these years Virginia had wanted to see her daughter; had felt that things would be different if only she could but find and know the love of her child.

Still, if now she were to reveal the truth—that she, Virginia Perry, was the mother of McLain's find, Betsy Ann Terwilliger—Betsy's career would be blighted on the stem by the frost of public scorn for her relationship to this despised pariah of the moving picture world.

While steeped in degradation, she could not proclaim this child as the flesh of her flesh—heart of her heart. But she would bide her time, take hold of herself, redeem and rebornish her honor and her soul and her body. Then, and not until then, would she be worthy of the filial love of Betsy.

CHAPTER XV.

Whoever said that money does not breed happiness, never was in stark want of it. For a practical illustration, consider Betsy Ann Terwilliger in the first two weeks after she had been installed on the McLain Productions, Inc. payroll at the mighty comfortable salary of $150 a week. If Betsy were a skylark and could only trill to vent her vital joy, the song in her heart would have ruptured her little white throat. But there were other channels of gladness satisfaction open to her—most important, the sheer ecstasy of ministering to Hal. Yet it was not the increased medical care, thanks to McLain's specialist friend, or the dainty foods and little luxuries, thanks to Betsy, that made him a convalescent so soon; it was, chiefly, the relief in watching the distraught shadows fade out of her beloved face to be replaced by the perpetual sunshine that belonged there. Sunshine warm and wintry as that which poured into the peaceful Valley back home in Iowa.

Always during her leisure hours Betsy came straight to the bedside, and stayed there—relating the breath-taking wonders of the day. Telling how Mrs. Perry was manifesting such interest in her; coaching her, and helping her through the first few shakings.

"I can't explain, Hal, dearest," she said in a puzzled way one night, "why and how it is Mrs. Perry affects me so. When she holds my hands and looks at me, I feel a strange bunching inside, as if I wanted to cry. Why is that?"

Hal had to confess that he did not know.

"You'd be amazed at the change in her, too," confided Betsy. "Every one around the Studio remarks it. She hasn't touched a drop of liquor since production started. She's cleaner and tidier, too; and now that the dissipation is gradually going out of her face, she is quite beautiful. Mr. McLain is so pleased and proud. He says it is all due to my influence. But I really do love her, Hal—she's so nice to me."

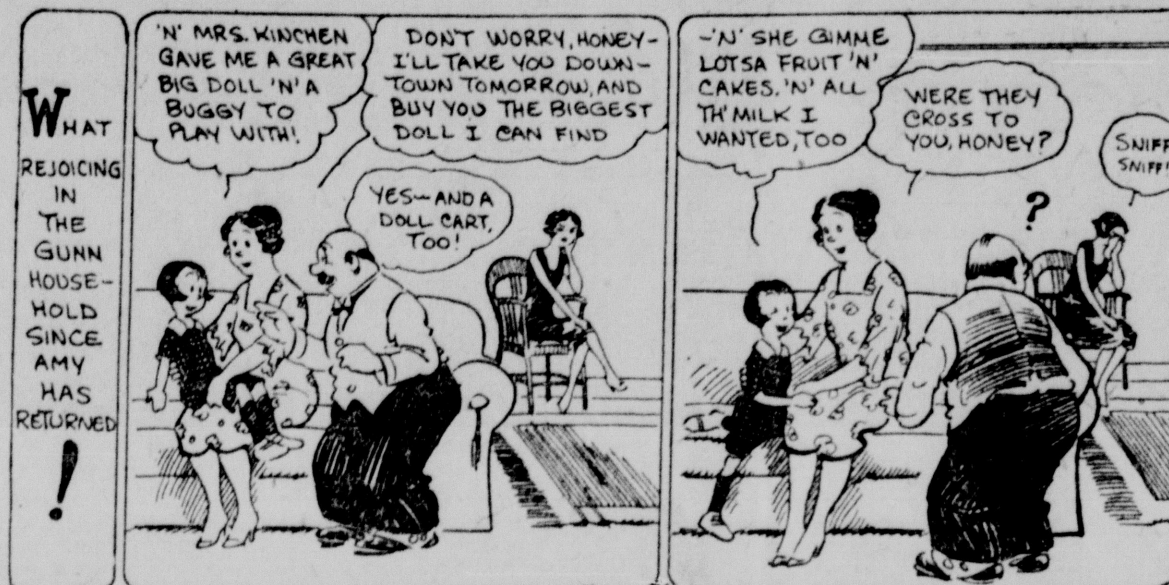

Marshall, now that Betsy was working steadily, cultivated her more assiduously. But he so cleverly fortified his pretensions to disinterested friendship that Hal was gradually disarmed, and agreed that perhaps "Marshall isn't such a bad guy after all."

Marshall, in front of Hal's bedside, devoted many long lessons to coaching Betsy. Both Hal and Betsy grew flattered with his interest, and attributed her modest success as an actress, so far, in no small measure to him.

At the Studio Virginia shadowed Betsy so constantly that Marshall, who had entree as a known impresario, had scant chance to monopolize the girl in her moments off the set.

A sudden premonition of trouble laid hold of him, and gone were his resolutions to work around the yard. Dull resentment glowed in him.

"I'll be dogged if I'll hang around the house while she's in there," he muttered, and wheeling the little car around, he headed back downtown, cursing, got hold of Paul Davidson at his club and spent the afternoon playing bridge for reckless stakes and consuming highball after highball.

NOEL and VERA BOYD, whose marriage is strictly "modern" and each of whom leaves the other to do as he pleases.

PAT and MARIAN FORBES, who have three children and whose marriage is unhappy because of Pat's roving tendencies. Previous chapters told how:

John was fascinated on meeting NELL ORME, of whom Pat Forbes hints that she is having trouble with her husband.

Vera Boyd showed an interest in John which he did not return, but which aroused Fay's jealousy.

When Fay told JUDITH, the baby, to Washington to visit her parents, John "ran around" a good deal, mostly in company with Pat Forbes.

When Fay returned John told her about meeting DOROTHY FRANCIS, an old acquaintance of his, now on the stage. He admits that he kissed Dorothy goodnight and Fay is hurt, and shows it, whereupon John decides not to tell her of a few escapades that were wilder.

A gossiping neighbor tells her about John coming home drunk during her absence, and an acquaintance phones that she had seen him with a beautiful girl (Dorothy Francis).

Fay's birthday comes and John is thoughtful, but she begins to question whether he is as much in love with her as she with him. She is troubled, and, thinking of Marian Forbes, she tells herself she would leave John rather than have people pitying her as they did Marian.

Now GO ON WITH THE STORY (The names and situations in this story are fictitious.)

CHAPTER XXXV
I ET alone, the Milburns would have been serenely happy and might have lived till their dying days without a serious quarrel. But trouble came from without, and the day arrived when John was to reflect bitterly that the world refused to regard a marriage as the business exclusively of the couple involved.

On the Saturday afternoon following the visit of Mr. Logan, John, leaving the office early for the first time in months, drove home, resolved on an afternoon's work around the house and yard. An unusual tranquility possessed him; this peaceful pattering around in the garden somehow would bring him closer to Fay.

But he and Fay that day were destined for the bitterest quarrel of their married career. As he approached the little house, resplendent in the sun with its gleaming white paint and its green blinds, he saw a familiar figure treading primly up the walk. He recognized it. It was as if a cloud had passed before the sun.

"Mrs. Bixby?" he gasped. "Well, what in the name of Pete does that old hen want now?"

A sudden premonition of trouble laid hold of him, and gone were his resolutions to work around the yard. Dull resentment glowed in him.

"I'll be dogged if I'll hang around the house while she's in there," he muttered, and wheeling the little car around, he headed back downtown, cursing, got hold of Paul Davidson at his club and spent the afternoon playing bridge for reckless stakes and consuming highball after highball.

As for Fay, she was wearing a dust cap and manipulating the vacuum cleaner when Mrs. Bixby rang the bell. The latter, with a critical glance around her, settled into the proffered chair and after voicing voluble admiration of Julie to will taken in open court. Testimony of Lulu Walker taken in open court. Probate of will denied by reason of subsequent marriage.

Fay tried her best to assume an air of polite interest, although her visitor had interrupted important work; and, like John, she had viewed Mrs. Bixby's visit with some trepidation, being well acquainted with that lady's propensity for trouble-making.

The old neighborhood, it seemed, missed the Milburns dreadfully, and Mrs. Bixby really felt ashamed that she had not called sooner. "But you about that incident. And I know, too, that that's why you came out here—to tell me about it—and that you'd never have come if you had thought I knew. I'm sorry I can't ask you to come again, for to tell you the truth, I'd prefer not to see you any more. Good day."

"Oh—" her visitor gasped, and once in her life could not find words. She tried to gather herself together to sweep majestically out of the door, but it was a failure; instead, she seemed to creep out like a chastened dog.

And Fay, her faith in the man she loved wavering like a pine in a tempest, sought out Judith to press her to her breast, and bitter hunger was in her eyes and in her heart.

It is written that the human animal takes a barbaric delight in hurting those whom he loves. If Fay had gone to John with her true feelings unmasked with tears in her eyes and pleading in her voice, she could have shamed him into contrition, even though he did admit no wrong.

But John came home late. Dinner was cold and there was liquor on his breath, and when the scent of it reached her it served to kindle the fire of resentment that burned within her. She felt only that he had injured her, and she would injure him in return.

John had expected to come home to an unpleasant scene; he knew that Mrs. Bixby's visit could only pre-empt trouble and he had some inkling of what that trouble was; but he was entirely unprepared for this blazing fury.

"Don't come near me!" she cried as he attempted to kiss her. "Keep away; you're drunk!"

As a matter of fact, he was drunk, or very nearly. Sober, he probably would have refused to quarrel with her, but her accusation angered him the more because of its truth.

"I've been drinking, my dear," he said with cold dignity, "but I'm not drunk." He turned stiffly and walked away from her, went into the living room where he seized a newspaper and sank into a chair.

But Fay, a wounded, half-hysterical Fay, followed him. Wordlessly she stood in the doorway surveying him for a long minute, and then, "Liar!" she said, as contemptuously as she could.

He sprang to his feet and his head turned toward her as if it had been jerked violently. Anger leaped into his eyes, and he clenched his hands at his sides.

"Look here now, that's going pretty far, Fay. I won't stand for that and you know it."

"Liar is the only name I have for those who don't tell the truth!" At that moment John cursed himself with all his power for not having made a clean breast of the Eleanor Mason affair before it had been distorted and made uglier than it was. And at that moment, too, he cursed himself for turning back downtown at sight of Mrs. Bixby. Had he gone in the house, he reflected, he could have headed her off. He did not need to be told what was from people like Mrs. Bixby. "All right," he said resignedly, "I suppose you want me to tell you all about the Eleanor Mason affair—do you call it—and why I didn't tell you before."

"Oh, you're bound, I suppose, to find justification for yourself." "Look here, Fay," he entreated, "you're not giving me a chance."

"I seem to have given you all the chance you needed when I went home."

He looked at her steadily. "If you were a man, I'd hit you for that."

"I'm surprised that you don't strike me anyway."

Helpless, baffled rage took hold of him, and it took a superhuman struggle to control himself. He said finally, in a calm voice, "Fay, you've taunted me almost beyond endurance, but because I know I'm wrong—though not as wrong as you think—I'll be patient. Once before I went out with Eleanor Mason, and Mrs. Blodgett reported it to you. Thereafter, whenever you wanted to throw anything up to me you referred to Eleanor Mason. When you got back home I intended to tell you, but you seemed to feel so badly about the episode with Dorothy that I—well, I just couldn't, that's all."

"And I suppose you would have been content never to tell me?" "If I could have found a way that would keep the molehill from turning into a mountain, I would have."

"And I am to believe," she said contemptuously, "that all of these little affairs are molehills? How convenient, to be able to say that the world is forever misjudging you!"

"It would serve you right," he retorted hotly, "if I did go out on a real wide-open tear. I've a good mind to do it."

"Well, you wouldn't find me here when you got back. I've just about reached my limit with you."

"You have?" He leaped to his feet. "Then I might as well go now."
